

9 Fun Things to Do in Kennebunkport, Maine With Kids

BY SUZANNE ROWAN KELLEHER | Updated 11/06/17

Easily accessible from Boston and other New England hubs, the adorable seaside resort town of Kennebunkport is chock full of dyed-in-the-wool, old-timey Maine charm. Bringing the family? Put these kid-friendly activities at the top of your to-do list.

The Most Kid-Friendly Hotels in Town

At the hip-yet-kid-friendly Lodge on the Cove, complimentary loaner bikes are provided (adult and kid sizes) for exploring the quiet streets around the resort (25 mph speed limit) and for making the easy-breezy half-mile trip into town. There's also a heated outdoor saltwater pool, a firepit for s'more-making, Ping Pong and shufflepuck tables, lawn games, and free breakfast and wi-fi.

Reminiscent of summer camp, Hidden Pond is a secluded 60-acre resort that features 16 two-bedroom cottages, 20 bungalow cottages, a Tree Spa (treatment rooms are literally eight feet off the ground, nestled among the birch trees), an on-site 800-square foot organic Farm, two pools (one for families, one adult only) and the farm-to-fork restaurant, Earth. After dinner, grab a basket stocked with classic s'mores ingredients and enjoy dessert by the bonfire.

Located minutes from Goose Rocks Beach, Sandy Pines Campground provides an experience that is authentically Maine, delivering ocean views, salty breezes and the ambiance of a darling seaside town. The property includes a lodge, rustic general store, and a multitude of resort-level amenities and outdoor activities. The park's 320 campsites cater to tent campers, RVers and glampers who can reserve one of 12 beautifully appointed safari tents created by 12 different New England designers.
